Memories Revived at Cameron Mills Old Home Day for 500 Saturday

Annual get-together of sons and daughters of village attracts many from several states—Varied program from softball in morning to dance at night on program — William Dascomb is master-of-ceremonies —Assemblyman Stuart reviews famous Douglas case—Committee congratulated.

Time marched back many years for those who attended the Cameron Mills Old Home Day celebration Saturday afternoon and evening in that colorful little village. Assemblyman William Stuart took the group back 115 years to an event which made the section famous and before and after he spoke, memories of school days, childhood events, old friends and new friends were revived at the various events on a program that makes this one of the best conducted and greatest attended Old Home Days in this vicinity.

Everyone takes an active part in the program from the old time families in the village to the newest settlers, for all join in making the returning son and daughter feel welcome and give to the stranger that same hearty welcome. The sons and daughters who have become famous, return to find the same warm welcome awaiting them as when they were kids in school with the people now living in the vicinity and from the greatest to the humblest, all become loyal sons and daughters.

Credit Committee

Much credit is due the committee headed by William Crawford and William Dascomb for the success of the affair which was attended by more than 500 from Oklahoma, Missouri, Florida and intermediate states. Some of those who could not attend, sent their regrets in the form of letters and telegrams, and expressed a wish to be present.

The day's activities began early in the morning, in fact several weeks ago when preliminary plans were made for the day's program. Women of the village spent days preparing food, young people gave time to the erection of booths about the village for housing the things necessary for the day. Others spent time decorating the village streets, places of business and cars, tractors and wagons in preparation for the parade.

Women of the community served a dinner in the Masonic Hall at noon to more than 200. Throughout the noon time and early afternoon hours much time was devoted to registration, renewing acquaintances, meeting friends, making new friends and in general getting into the atmosphere of "old home day".

Parade

The afternoon's program opened with the traditional parade. There was a decorated tractor furnished to represent "a What?" A pair of goats attracted attention as did farm wagons hauled by tractors, decorated floats of various village organizations and bicycles gaily decorated.

St. Catherine's Old Home Day Attracts Over 500 to Church

Over 300 for dinner marked the intense interest in St. Catherine's Old Home Day held Sunday on the church grounds. This is believed to be the largest number to be served at these annual get-togethers of the parishioners and former parishioners and friends of St. Catherine's Church.

One of the disappointments of the day was in the non-appearance of United States Senator James M Mead, Buffalo, who was only released from official duties in Washington late Saturday night and sent a telegram of regret to the Rev. Patrick Kelly, general chairman for the day's activities.

The program opened with a bazaar on the church grounds Saturday afternoon and evening. Booths had been erected by men of the parish and tents were secured for the occasion.

Sunday morning a field Mass was said in St. Catherine's Catholic cemetery for the deceased members of the congregation. The Rev. Kennedy, Buffalo, nephew of Father Kelly, was celebrant and also delivered an appropriate sermon. He spoke of the Catholic Church trio of church militant those on earth, the church suffering those in purgatory and the church triumphant those who have acquired the saintly life in Heaven. The body as the temple of the soul, taken from St. Paul, was quoted to show that the body and soul would rise glorious and immortal on the judgment day and that there is something consoling in the Catholic philosophy which assures us a hereafter and which does not permit earthly sinners to be admitted to Heaven without some form of temporal punishment. He asked his audience to pray for the souls of the departed.

The afternoon was given over to the bazaar and to getting acquainted and renewing friendships. There were many former members of the parish there from several cities and villages throughout New York State and other states, for parishioners have scattered far and wide during the years since the church was organized and many of the sons and daughters of those who have aided in building the church through the years returned to pay their tribute to the parents buried in local cemeteries and to friends, relatives and parents still living in Addison and vicinity.

Members of the committee are to be commended for the work in making this affair a success and especially to Miss Nora Finnican and Mrs. Rose Sheehan, co-chairmen of the food committee and dining hall group.

After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Wickering came to Addison, where the groom is employed in the Stickler Hardware Store. They have taken apartments in the Wildrick House, Wombough Street. Keen Interest in Subscription Drive as Leaders Set Fast Pace

Miss Betty Sanford holds lead in fast race — Douglas Aldrich is second, closely followed by Mrs. Elsie Buck and Miss Eileen Grist — Opportunity still open to live wires—Inactive members to be dropped after Tuesday.

Now it is a real race. Tuesday's count of the Advertiser-Sentinel subscription campaign shows the leaders going neck and neck, with Miss Betty Jane Sanford leading the pace by only a few points, with Douglas Aldrich in second place, closely pursued by Mrs. Elsie Buck and Miss Eileen Grist. This is a very interesting situation, since Douglas Aldrich will bend every effort to gain the lead; on the other hand Miss Sanford is greatly encouraged by holding the lead, and as for Mrs. Buck and Miss Grist who are right on the heels of the leaders, their aim right now is to put forth extra effort and try to overcome those above them. These workers are going to put up a fast and furious race from now on out.

Other Workers in Good Showing

Miss Helen Kneaskern, while making a late start, is in fifth place and from all reports will be right up with the leaders on the next count, in the meanwhile Mrs. Margaret Harris is not remaining idle and it would be no surprise to see her fighting it out in the finish for one of the best prizes.

Workers and Citizens Interested

Judging from the remarks of the workers and the many inquiries received at the Advertiser office in reference to the progress of favorite workers, much interest is being shown in the campaign at this time. The workers report long lists of promises to be collected at an early date, which show exceptional interest by the people. The best of humor prevails among the workers, all seeming to appreciate the fact that while this is a contest for liberal prizes and high honors, all are friendly enemies, and nothing but good sportsmanship shall prevail. However, the Subscription Campaign will be fought bitterly every foot of the way from now on, and no worker will dare give way to sympathy for a competitor or they will suffer in their standings. The encouragement of the public is very much appreciated by the workers and will have a great bearing on the success of the campaign.

Inactive Workers to Be Dropped

After next Tuesday's count all inactive workers will be dropped from the list. This is a campaign of active and fast work. To continue the publication of the names of inactive workers would be unfair to those intent upon making this a success campaign for themselves and this newspaper. At this time, many possible subscriptions are being held back by the public, since they wish to give them to the workers who show they are in to win one of the best prizes. To remain active in the campaign, each worker must make two cash reports a week. This can be but one subscription each count.

This is as little as can be made, and the idea is a joke to the big leaders, but the campaign department wants all the workers to remain active, and the requirements are made as light as possible.

Larger Extra Points Now

The allowance for extra points on subscriptions is the largest now that it will be any time during the campaign, the workers are well aware of this fact, and are working day and night to get as many subscriptions in as possible before the large extra points are taken off. HOWEVER, MANY SUBSCRIBERS DO NOT UNDERSTAND THIS.

Subscriptions may be mailed direct to the office of the ADDISON ADVERTISER-SENTINEL asking that the credits be given to any active worker, and the points will be turned over to the worker designated. This will save the worker a great amount of time, and of course is a favor to be highly appreciated. BE SURE TO MENTION YOUR WORKER IN MAKING YOUR PAYMENT TO THE OFFICE, as this is the only way your favorite will receive proper credit.

The end of the LARGE EXTRA POINTS is the turning point in the race, into the mad rush down the home stretch, bringing more thrills each hour than have developed in the days before.

Readers and friends should realize with the workers the importance of the next few days and see that not only their own subscriptions are in on the large extra points but that their friends have also taken advantage of the earning power of their subscription before the large extra points are taken off.

ONLY 21 WORKING DAYS UNTIL THE FINAL COUNT AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE GRAND PRIZES. TIME IS FLEETING. PLAN EACH DAY AS THE LAST AND THERE WILL BE FEW REGRETS.

WORK! There is no Substitute for It! WORK!

Village Board to Take Action To Cut Speeding—Other Business

Trustees approve payment of $1,500 WPA bond—To seek repairs to sidewalk at Front and Main streets—Other sidewalk to be built in front of Pep-O Bakery property—Audit bills.

The need for traffic signs on the main traveled streets of Addison to stop speeders was discussed at a meeting of the Village Board held Monday night in the village hall. Mayor Angelo Sisto presided at the meeting which was attended by Trustees Hubert Orr, Russell Allen and Norman Phelps, Sr.

The railroad oficials will be asked to install "slow" signs at the approach to the railroad on east Water street, east of the grist mill. Relative to speeding, the state legal limit for villages of 25 miles per hour will be enforced and drivers will be arrested under reckless driving charges in a drive to stop speeding on Front, South and Tuscarora Streets in the opinion of some of the trustees. Legal signs will be erected in time to compel motorists to respect the speed limits Several complaints have been received by officials from residents of these streets.

Mel Murray appeared before the board to ask that the village enforce the erection of a sidewalk from the Pep-O bakery to connect with his sidewalk before fall weather sets in. He said he had waited five years and thouhgt it time the board do something. When the bridge was assured here last year, he was willing to wait until after it was constructed before asking for the walk, but with no bridge in sight for Main Street, he feels he should have the walk. It was voted to give proprietors of the Pep-O Bakery 30 days in which to construct the sidewalk or the village will take suitable action against them.

Trustees discussed the hurry with which state and county officials got local officials to sign away certain rights in the village in order that the bridge could be constructed and that was several months ago and there is no possibility of a bridge being constructed this year.

County officials will be asked to clear away the crushed stone and repair the sidewalk at the corner of Front and Main Streets on the south east side of the street. Several complaints have been heard relative to the abominable walking condition there by the village officials and if the county does not take action the street commissioner for the village will be asked to clear away the crushed stone and broken concrete there. The condition of the Erie Crossing on Main Street was also discussed for Mayor Sisto said this is worse than he has ever seen it.

The street commissioner will also cut away a dead tree in Maple St., adjacent to St. Catherine's Cemetery. The Rev. Patrick Kelly, pastor, wrote the board that a dangerous condition exists there.

Bills audited and ordered paid were: American La France Company, Elmira, Siamese couplings, spreader nozzle and hydrant wrenches $19.74; New York State Gas & Electric Company, $291.97 for street lights; Town of Tuscarora by Michael Brennan, supervisor, for repairs to road and use of town machinery, $10; Chatfield Garage, inspections to fire trucks and repairs for last four months, $5.25; Archie L. Blades, eight and one-fourth tons asphalt, $61.88; Bert Ellwood, labor, $3.25; Mary Hibbard, cleaning jail, $2.50; Doddato Shell Station 20 gallons of gas less tax, $2.90; Leonard Hoaglin, repairs to village hall and tile for sewer on Front Street, $29.64; Earl Leavenworth, gas $2.62.

Clerk Wilfred M. Miller was given authority to transfer $143 from the general fund to put with other moneys in the bank to pay $1,500 on one of the W. P. A. notes owed by the village.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS

After seven months of a strenuous session Congress finally adjourned Saturday. It was a session marked by two things; first, Congress appropriated more money than any previous peace time session, and second, administration leaders lost almost complete control of the majority group for the first time since Roosevelt took office in 1933.

Add to these factors the further fact that Congress again became largely a legislative body with a mind of its own, and one can glimpse a little of the picture of what happened in Washington from January to August.

It was hinted in the capital city last winter that in 1939 the President intended to let Congress take the bit in its teeth and pull the ship of state where it would. He could afford to set back and watch the legislators try to work out of any predicament they happened to get into—in other words, let them stew in their own juice. But the party did not work out quite as Roosevelt might have planned it. Smoldering underneath a surface of apparent serenity in the body of the majority was the bitter resentment of a number of prominent Democrats who were marked for purging by the young New Dealers in last fall's election. In addition to the unpurged members were many old time Democrats who regard the Corcoran-Cohen group as rank interlopers with unbelievable cheek to try to read any Democrat out of his party. So there was a considerable group of Senators and Representatives who took their seats last winter with the firm purpose of acting in accordance with the dictates of their consciences, instead of at the bidding of the Chief Executive. And in this group were some of the older, most experienced legislators in Washington.

So it happened that Congress functioned as intended by the founding fathers. Much of the legislation which came up for action was considered on its merits and voted upon with the clear purpose of men elected to discharge the duties of a high office. There was far less time wasted listening to the sugared words of lobbyists than in some of our past sessions. Minority pressure groups did not fare so well in 1939, but by the same token the people as a whole have far more to be thankful for as the legislators packed bags for home.

Now Congress has adjourned there is newspaper talk about the pros and antis of controversial legislation taking the issues to the people. Bills which are still being talked about are the Lending-Spending measure and the bid of Mr. Roosevelt for new powers in the neutrality act. It would be better, by far, for all of us if the country were allowed to forget these bones of contention for awhile. During a conference of leaders at the White House over the Neutrality bill Vice President Garner is believed to have said flatly to the President, "You haven't the votes, have you, to pass the bill?" That ended the matter for the time.

Probably the country as a whole would be willing to let it be ended until another session, at least. A coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats quite generally stole the show during the 1939 session. It may be well for the pro-New Dealers to let "sleeping dogs lie" for a few months, at least.

THE HATCH BILL

No matter what their political faiths may be, the ordinary run of public-spirited citizens should rejoice that the Congress passed and the President signed the Hatch bill which the distinguished Senator from Texas has long hoped to see enacted into law. Senator Hatch has been fighting for this bill for the sake of a principle, that principle being the purging of national politics of the forces of coercion. The bill forbids federal office holders below the rank of those at the top from engaging in political campaigns.

Thus, if the law is lived up to, the hordes of federal office holders which are established in position by whichever party happens to be in power, cannot spend their time, leisure or otherwise, in the efforts of perpetuating their party in power. This is as it should be. In the first place these federal office holders are not hired and paid by the party in control. They are the servants of all the people in the land, at least in theory. They are paid from the federal treasury and their time should be spent performing the duties for which they were hired.

No private business on the face of the earth could exist for long if its employees devoted considerable of their time to schemes designed to tear down the work of departments in the business other than their own. Their efficiency for the company would be so reduced the business would soon be in bankruptcy. At long last we must learn that the public business shall have to attain the efficiency and excellence of private business. Waste and loss must be cut down to a minimum or the country will face a taxpayers' strike. The Hatch Bill was a long step in the right direction.

INFLATION CURBED

Inflation, with all its train of bankruptcy and misery, can be stopped.

Courageous men in both parties in Congress have called a halt on filling the banks with government IOUs for lavish spending.

Borrowing money on government bonds is inflationary just as much as printing paper currency by the billion. The effects of the bond method are not felt so quickly as printing fiat money, but eventually the effects will be felt to the same extent.

Far sighted men in Congress saw the trend toward mounting debt and currency dilution with all their attendant evils. Boldly, vigorously they voted to end the practice and return to sound financing.

Thus they ended what Bruce Barton calls our own "Mississippi Bubble" and the American people can breathe easier once more.

Praise and thanks are due the men in Congress, whatever their political faith, who did this courageous act. They were thinking not of themselves, but of the welfare of their country. They did what has seldom been done before; they put a curb upon inflation when the great temptation is to take the easier way and be lavish with the people's money.

These men believed taking 25 cents of everybody's dollar for taxes is enough; they voted against taking more of the dollar in taxes; they applied sound business principles to governmental action.

They did their country and their countrymen a great service.

The return of real, stable recovery is likely to date from that action.

YES—BANKS WANT TO MAKE LOANS

A short time ago Gurden Edwards, Director of the Research Council of the American Bankers Association, had an extensive survey made to find out just how interested banks are in making loans. And here, according to published reports, is what was found:

1. A very high percentage of commercial banks are making active efforts to stimulate the use of bank credit by both business concerns and individuals.

2. They have made liberal adaptations of their loaning methods and policies to meet varied requirements of individuals and business concerns applying for credit.

3. The needs of small borrowers in the field of business and personal finance alike are being well taken care of by the commercial banks.

This shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone who has thought about banking. Loans are commercial banks' main sources of livelihood. They pay the overhead and the profits, if any. They help the community to grow, which is necessary to the growth of the bank.

No banks want to refuse any loans, but there is a percentage of loan applications which must be refused—because they are unsound or unsafe, would endanger the depositors' savings, and perhaps be illegal. After all, the banker doesn't own the money, and the protection of his depositors, who do own it, must come first. But that doesn't obviate the fact that banks are more than eager to make sound loans, for any productive, legal purpose.

"DISILLUSIONMENT"

Intelligent and foresighted representatives of organized labor are awakening to the menace of government ownership and control of business.

For example, the Union Register of Seattle, Washington, a newspaper which is owned and published by the Oregon-Washington Council of Lumber and Sawmill Workers, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, recently ran a lead editorial concerning the WPA strikes. The editorial was entitled "Disillusionment", and it said, in part: "The WPA includes some two million workers. It represents the largest single bloc of workers in the nation. Yet with all its strength it will accomplish nothing because there is no power on earth to compel the government to either negotiate or arbitrate . . .

"If the two million men employed by the WPA were working in a private industry, their numerical strength alone would insure them a quick redress against any form of exploitation. Against the government which need not arbitrate or negotiate, their strength is useless . . .

"As workers in private industry we are free to mould our own destiny and win for ourselves the best wages and conditions which our organized strength can produce. Under government ownership we would have to take what was handed us without any form of redress. That is why we have fought so long and so hard for democracy and the American way".

The WPA strike failed. About the only tangible result was the discharge of a large number of workers who did not return to their jobs within five days allowed them. The strike failed just exactly as a strike against the government would fail in Germany, Russia or Italy, where the people have been subjected to the most ruthless kind of official despotism. What worker in private industry in this country, after observing the examples of state socialism abroad, can honestly argue that he would be better off under government ownership of industry—the true name for which is totalitarianism?

This Week in Washington

—Careful students of political psychology are trying to estimate the probable political effects of two unexpected occurrences in the closing days of the Congressional session, or what seemed to be its closing days.

One was the unheralded "denunciation" of the commercial treaty between the United States and Japan by proclamation of the Secretary of State. The other was the personal attack upon Vice-President Garner by John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The Japanese matter comes down to this. Senator Key Pittman of Nevada has been trying for some time to get Congress to enact some law which would effectively prohibit the sale and export to Japan of materials of war. He had general support for the idea, since the sympathies of Congress, like those of the nation in general, are entirely with China.

But unless the President should declare by proclamation that a state of war exists between Japan and China there is no law on the American statute books which can be invoked to prevent anybody from selling anything to Japan, except a few items which are specifically under the control of the Munitions Board.

It would make for an awkward international situation were the President to declare the Japan-China affair a war when neither of the parties to it admits it is a war. Hence the United States is at peace with both nations, neutral in their neighborhood quarrels, and proposes to remain so, especially since we are bound by a treaty with Japan, signed in 1911, under which each nation gives the other free access to its markets, subject to moderate tariff duties, for any commodities which either exports and the other imports.

"Denouncing" a Treaty

That treaty, however, contains a clause under which either Japan or the United States can cancel by giving six months notice. Such notice, in terms of diplomacy, is called "denouncing" a treaty.

While the Senate was trying to find some way to limit exports to our peaceful neighbor, Japan, without violating that old commercial treaty, it occurred to Senator Arthur Vandenberg to read the treaty. He came across the "denunciation" clause and immediately drafted and introduced a resolution in the Senate calling upon the President to denounce the treaty.

The resolution caused something of a sensation. Nobody had thought of that way of clearing the decks to do what Senator Pittman had tried to do, legally barring the door to the export of goods to Japan and the importation of Japanese wares into America. While the Senate cloakrooms were still buzzing with the audacity of the proposal, and sentiment was forming strongly for it, regardless of party lines, the Administration acted.

Probably the President and the Secretary of State had already considered the denunciation of the treaty with Japan, and were hesitating because of doubt about the attitude of Congress. But the reception given to the Vandenberg resolution, which never came to a vote, removed all doubt. With no warning to the Japanese Ambassador or anybody else, the proclamation denouncing the treaty was given to the press.

The politics which Washington sees in this is that it would have been very bad politics indeed for a Democratic Administration to let such a proposal go before the people as having been originated by a Republican, especially when that Republican is a leading candidate for the Presidential nomination.

Unexpected Denunciation

The other incident which has set political dopesters at work with their fortune-telling equipment, is the unexpected denunciation of the Vice President by Mr. Lewis. In the course of a hearing before the House Committee on Labor, the head of the CIO attacked Congress for its "unfair" attitude toward organized labor, and said:

"The genesis of this campaign against Labor in the House is within the Democratic Party. It runs across to the Senate of the United States and emanates there from a labor-baiting, poker-playing, whisky-drinking evil old man whose name is Garner . . . I am against him officially, individually and personally. I am against him in 1939 and will be against him in 1940 when he seeks the Presidency of the United States".

Congressmen who heard Mr. Lewis say those things, which are taken from the stenographic record, were stunned. The news spread through the House like wildfire and there was a rush of members, not only from Mr. Garner's home state of Texas but from other parts of the country, to rise in their places and denounce Mr. Lewis in turn. In the Senate there was equal earnestness in the expressions of Senators in defense of Mr. Garner.

Not Believed Warranted

So far as Washington has been able to observe the personal conduct and habits of Mr. Garner, through

Consider Special Milk Producers' Meet to Adjust Drouth Prices

Metropolitan Bargaining Agency officials call special session — Ask cooperation of state department officials.

Saturday morning the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers' Bargaining Agency received the following letter:

"The United States Department of Agriculture reports that New York State has been hardest hit of any state by the current douth. It is common knowledge that there is practically no pasturage for milch cows in the New York milk shed. Drouth caused a short hay crop. Grain yield is subnormal. The corn crop is likely to be extremely small. In many sections dairy farmers are put to extra expense to haul water for cattle and also have to use purchased feed. These conditions all increase the cost of producing milk. It is imperative that immediate action be taken to obtain higher prices for farmers. Therefore, we urge you to petition the United States Secretary of Agriculture and the New York State Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets for an immediate hearing to amend the Federal and State Marketing Orders so that the price paid to farmers for milk shall be increased during the emergency period. Hearing on such amendment should be held at the earliest possible moment. The hearing should be restricted to consideration of this one amendment because of the necessity for quick action to raise farmers prices to prevent a decline in milk production that might endanger the supply".

Fred H. Sexauer, President
Dairymen's League Coop. Ass'n.

The same afternoon the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers' Bargaining agency, Inc., sent the following telegram to Henry A. Wallace and Commissioner Holton V. Noyes:

"The Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers' Bargaining Agency, Inc., representing more than thirty-five per cent of the milk producers approved and qualified to ship milk to the Metropolitan New York markets hereby respectfully requests a hearing upon the Federal-State Marketing Order for the purpose of considering price changes which are necessary in order to meet an emergency situation producers cannot meet under present order prices and which if not speedily met endangers public welfare.

"Government reports show that this area is hardest hit of any section by the present drouth. Dr. R. L. Gillette, Agricultural statistician for the State and Federal governments at Albany reported yesterday that the hay crop of New York State is more than one million tons less than normal. A careful survey of the Agency shows that in our best dairy sections there is no pasture feed, pastures are brown and barren and winter fodder is now being used to maintain dairy herds. There will be no second cutting of alfalfa or clover and there is no after growth in meadows to even supplement pastures. Corn crops have for weeks been rolled and leaves are burned brown and stalks are dead in many fields. Brooks are very low and many completely dry; farmers are hauling water for cattle and wells never before known to be dry are now dry. Throughout the shed there are many fires, fifty-five being reported in the public press this morning by the Conservation Department.

"In some receiving stations production has declined already more than 40 per cent from the high production earlier this year. The decline each day is alarming and present prices will not permit the purchase of grains. Dairy cattle are rapidly losing flesh and future production to meet the requirements of our cities is seriously threatened.

"A serious emergency exists and we respectfully petition that steps be taken immediately to take any action that may be necessary to increase prices to the dairy farmer. Due to the emergency we suggest that one hearing be called at some central point and that this hearing be held at the earliest possible moment and restricted to the consideration of one amendment only, that being an increased price. Quick action to raise farmers' prices to prevent a decline in milk production that might endanger the supply is imperative.

One thing at a time and that done well is a very good rule as many can tell. Therefore, let us put all our emphasis on receiving this increase in the price of Class 1 milk. The Central Milk Producers' Sales Committee is making up a file to be used in this hearing on drouth conditions. Therefore, it would help us to obtain our objective of we would write this committee, care Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, N. Y., stating the exact conditions regarding said douth on your own farm and your neighbors'. Let us work fast.

Sincerely,
Central Milk Producers
Sales Committee.
K. A. Shaul, Chairman.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Well, Folks, I went to Cameron Mills Old Home Day Saturday and felt like a native son for quite some time. Back where I come from they do not have such affairs, more's the pity. And I had a great time, too. I'd like to add my little word of praise to the committee which arranged this affair. An affair which brought sons and daughters back from Oklahoma, Missouri, Florida, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states. And for what? Just to "renew their youth" as Dr. Goff said, and to meet old friends, talk over old times and feel glad to be alive.

It was great to see the real heartiness in the handclasps and the sincerity of the smiles, the willingness to help, the variety of the program, the friendly feeling expressed by everyone and the splendid God-given weather which enabled the program to be held in the open.

—o—

One lady was heard to say, "I'm only 47", but I think she underestimated her "only". The group singing left much to be desired, but I guess all had eaten too much to sing right out loud when Del Stewart called for "Old Black Joe". Paul Richtmyer was declared "The luckiest boy on the grounds" by those who knew him.

—o—

One event which caused some unpleasantness was caused by some of our own Addison young men and created a tense situation for a short time. One, who is a willing worker, was dunked with water by another for no cause. Friends separated them and both should be ashamed for their childlike actions.

—o—

However, I did enjoy the talks with Doc Goff, Finla Crawford, Bill Stuart, Frank Ginnane, Frank Crawford, Joe Horey, Ruth Crawford, who was most helpful and many others. And I liked the sound of Ruth B. Crawford's voice as she called numbers. All in all I had a "swell" day.

—o—

The following poem, brought in by Mrs. E. S. Cole, seems to me to fit some recent incidents here and hence the reprinting it in the Rambler.

Gossiptown

Have you ever heard of Gossiptown,
On the shore of Falsehood Bay,
Where old dame Rumor, with rusting gown,
Is going about all day?
It isn't far to Gossiptown,
For people who want to go,
The idleness train will take you down,
In just an hour or so.
The thoughtless road is a popular route,
And most folks start that way,
But its steep downgrade,
If you don't look out,
You'll land in Falsehood Bay.
You'll glide through the valley of Vicious Folk,
And into the tunnel of hate,
Then crossing the Add-To bridge you walk,
Right into the city gate.
The principal street is called They-Say,
And I've Heard is the public well,
And the breezes that blow from Falsehood Bay,
Are laden with Don't You Tell.
In the midst of the town is Tell-Tale Park,
You're never quite safe when there.
For its owner is Madam Suspicious Remark,
Who lives on the street Don't Care.
Just back of the park is Slander Row,
'Twas there a good name died,
Pierced by a dart from Jealousy's bow,
In the hands of Envious Pride.
From Gossiptown peace long since died,
But trouble and grief and woe,
And sorrow and care, you'll meet instead,
IF EVER YOU CHANCE TO GO.

This Week in Washington

many years of his service as minority leader in the House, Speaker and for seven years Vice-President, there is no warrant for Mr. Lewis' attack Like many another man, the Vice-President is not averse to a friendly game of cards or an occasional drink, those who know him best say. But the implications of the Lewis tirade do not by any means fit with the known character of the man.

Mr. Lewis personally is said to be a man of highly scrupulous, almost religious character. He does not drink or play cards and his private life is impeccable. That, his friends believe, makes him intolerant when the personal habits of others are under scrutiny.

Addison merchants lacked punch in the pinches Sunday in a baseball game against the leading Gang Mills nine. For those who liked an old fashioned umpire-baiting scrap, Sunday's game would have done their hearts good. Two base empires were evicted before the game ended.

The Cincy Reds are still showing the way in the National League in one of the greatest demonstrations of mid-season form this team has shown. They are over 11 games ahead with over a month to go. The Giants, favorites of many local fans, are not even leading the second division group, being in sixth place. Poor pitching is partly responsible.

Sylvester Johnson, coach of the Phillies this year, but on the side one of Doc Prothro's dependable pitchers, has always been one of those impressive-in-defeat characters. Sunday night Little Six representatives gathered and decided to alter their original plans and permit the top four teams to play in a play-off series. Anyway the championship matches will be played on the Addison high school diamond.

Warmer weather, bringing an increase in leisure hours, may give you more time to spend on needlework and other handcraft. Another child's quilt that looks much more complicated than it is, uses a ship as the appliqued centerpiece.

Wormley, Maude Ingersoll, Helen Horey, Neva Hargrave and Grace Jackson with Ruth Crawford as accompanist. Their opening song was, "How do you do".

Dr. Goff

A telegram from members of the Goff family at Hyannis, Mass., was read. Dr. A. P. Goff, also of Hyannis, Mass., was presented and said in part, "You are all welcome here. If you had not been here today, you would not see many of the people who live far away and only return for this event. The hills and the valley welcome you. Here we renew our youth. The officers who arranged this affair deserve a great deal of credit. This is the eighth time they have performed this great task. Also think of those who have gone since our last reunion. The usual "hangover" picnic will be held at our farm Tuesday afternoon and you are all invited. Thank you all for coming".

The Rev. John A. Clark asked the Lord's blessing on the assembly and program. A song, written especially for the occasion, "Old Home Day" was given by the chorus.

Assemblyman Stuart

"The Douglas Affair or the Mayberry Case" was the topic of the talk by Assemblyman Stuart. He told the story in dramatic detail, embellished with all the details of that affair as he learned them from Bill Taylor, whose father helped capture Bobbie Douglas.

Mr. Stuart prefaced his remarks by stating that little mention is made of this famous case in any of the histories of Steuben County and quite by accident did he meet Mr. Taylor and was enabled to include the story in his "Tales of the Kanisteo Valley."

The story in brief as gleaned from Mr. Stuart: Robert A. Douglas came to Addison about 1824 and became a millwright. No one seems to know from whence he came nor much about his background. He was employed by James Birdsall for a time. Shortly after coming to Addison he went to live with

FINLA G. CRAWFORD

Dean of Liberal Arts College, Syracuse and Native of Cameron Mills Who Spoke at Old Home Day Saturday.

Thomas Mayberry, or Maybury, who conducted an inn near where the reunion was being held.

Many who visited this inn were never seen again. Mayberry and Messrs. Cole, Hathaway and Wallace also lived in the inn and were believed to be part of a gang of bandits. Douglas married Mayberry's oldest daughter. He then became an itinerant peddler and among the things in his pack were items of jewelry.

Douglas gave a counterfeit bill to a merchant in the vicinity and when arrested denied knowledge of the act. He was released on $500 bail. Shortly after Samuel Ives was given a bill by Douglas and awaited Douglas' next visit to accuse him of the act. He chased Douglas and was worsting Douglas in a hand scuffle when Douglas stabbed Ives with a knife. Ives died. A hue and cry was raised throughout the countryside. There were no police in those days, militia doing the work. These were volunteers from various communities including Addison, Painted Post, Hornell and intermediate towns. All men from 18 to 45 were eligible. Over 700 men combed the woods of the vicinity seeking Douglas. Cole, Hathaway and Wallace were arrested as was Mrs. Mayberry. Douglas was finally captured in a barn by 13 men and the trip to Bath was a triumph for Douglas as everyone in the countryside turned out to see him. As he neared Bath he became solemn and asked the prayers of his captors. He was charged with first degree murder, in spite of the self-defense plea. But the people of the vicinity knew he had killed others and hence the first degree charge. A second trial was held in Albany with the same result, "guilty".

His execution was the first since Steuben County became a county in 1796 and on April 29, 1825 he was hanged. Even that was made a dramatic event, for a black-robed and a black-masked rider came dashing across the countryside, pelled the trap and then rode away, unknown to most of those present and there were thousands gathered there, for invitations to the hanging had been sent far and wide throughout the state. Douglas was buried in the Stickney Narrows.

Mr. Stuart was given a great ovation at the conclusion of this story of the vicinity. Telegrams were read from Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald, Cazenovia and Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin of La Plante, Mo.

Musical Saw

Something different in entertainment was provided by the Rev. McKinley with selections on a musical saw. Among the numbers played were "Joy Bells", "America the Beautiful" and "Think of Your Home Over There". Griff Jack gave some humorous stories and closed with that humorous poem "Life of a Farmer" from dawn to dusk and from year to year. Adelbert Stewart, Canisteo, acted as song leader for the entire group to join in "Old Black Joe". Harry Morton recalled Archie Evans an expert rifle shot, Andrew Donohue, and a teacher, Charles Shadduck and told stories of his dog Angelo, one in a line of 26. He told of the first piece of furniture he bought after being married was a dog, for he had always wanted one since a boy . Michael Lang gave a rapid fire demonstration of the sale talk of a salve salesman. The chorus then gave a medley of old time tunes including, "Bicycle built for two", "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree", "The Old Gray Mare", "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and ""Smiles".

Doris Wormley gave two accordion solos which included "Peggy O'Neal" and "Comrades".

Finla G. Crawford, dean of the liberal arts college at Syracuse University, a native of Cameron Mills, spoke of the fine program and complimented the principal speaker on the accuracy of detail in telling the story of the Douglas Case and stated that story alone was worth the trip to the reunion. He said, "I am glad to be a part of this Old Home Day observance and I'll be with you all next year".

Awards

The program closed with "Auld Lang Syne". Awards were made to Paul Richtmyer, a blanket, and awards to Mrs. Vina Rising, St. Petersburg, Fla. from the longest distance, Roger Lee Jimerson, the youngest being six weeks old, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson as the longest wedded couple, being 67 years together, to Mr. Bastian as the oldest present, being 91 years of age. The Jamison family with seven present was judged the largest family.

A supper was served in the Masonic Hall by the women. For the sports-minded, a sofeball game was played in the morning against a Jasper team by the Cameron Mills squad and the home boys won 14 to 10. In the afternoon they played the Addison Softball squad and lost 8 to 3. The evening program consisted of old and new dancing to the tune of Reagan Brothers orchestra.

Committees in charge of the various affairs were: Parade, Bert Jimerson, Neva Hargrave, Dora Leach, Lawrence Woodward, William Dascomb, Ruth Crawford, Grace Jackson and Edna Ingersoll; sports, Raymond Angel, Stanley Jimerson, John Horey and Harry Dascomb; food, Ruth Crawford, Mrs. Norma Jimerson, Georgia Reynolds, Alice Caparulo, Isabella Crawford, Mildred Dascomb, Francis Bowyer, Nellie Leach, Rose Lyons and Peter Haschey; dining room, Helen Kibbe, Helen Crawford, Ruth B. Old Jaloppies Again to Race at State Fair

Syracuse, Aug. 8 — Relics of the stone age of motordom, a collection of horseless carriages of twenty-five years ago or more will again wheeze, roar and groan around the race-track of the New York State Fair this year, it was announced today by Paul Smith, director of the fair. The decision to repeat the jaloppy race of last year was made, he said, to bring this feature before those who did not have the opportunity to witness this hilliarious event of last year's fair.

The 1939 jaloppy race is to be scheduled, appropriately, on Automoble Race Day, Saturday, September 2. Last year the race was conducted as a morning event, when relatively few spectators were present. At that time an archaic Stutz nosed out a field which included several Fords, a Cameron Feather-weight Flyer, a Sears, a Maxwell, a Columbian Flyer and other gas bugges of a generation or more ago.

Participants in last year's race have been invited to take part again, and the state is being scoured for additional entries which are still capable of moving under their own power. Prizes will be offered for the fastest cars, the oldest car, and the most colorful costume. Entries for the jaloppy events are now being received at the State Fair office.

Present plans call for the race to be run just before the start of the 100-mile National Championship Race, in the early afternoon. Drivers of the sleek modern racing cars will thus have a chance to view, with whatever consternation they care to muster, what could be done with anywhere from one to four, or possibly six cylinders. Official timers and starters will supervise the hair-raising dash of the old-timers, but it is felt that they can cope with the situation, even though they are not quite equipped for just that sort of thing.

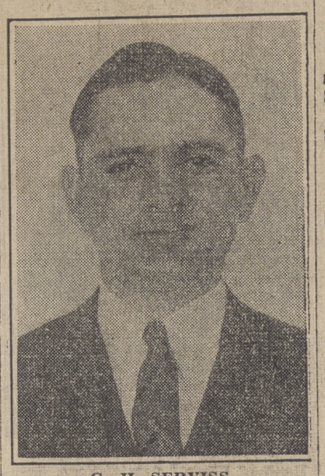
To insure that all entries get a square deal, a careful check of all competing cars will be made before the start of the race. Last year, it was rumored that a dilapidated hulk of a body concealed a modern chassis powered by a 110-horse-power motor. From the race results it was evident that this rumor must have been exaggerated, but fair officials are taking no chances.

As was the case last year, drivers will be permitted to run the race in their own way. Those who saw the 1938 event will recall that one driver employed a buggy-whip to stimulate his 10-horsepower engine. Although this was frowned upon by the judges, they pointed out that there was nothing in the rules to disqualify him, besides which he came in last anyway.

Bull Throwing To Feature Dairy Meet

"Throwing the bull" will be something more than a catch-word at the Steuben county dairy tour of Friday, August 11, for a feature of the big meeting is a demonstration of the roping and throwing of the herd sire.

The feat is to be performed by



G. H. SERVISS
Cornell Crop Expert Will Talk on Seeding Failures at the Dairy Tour Friday.

S. J. Brownell, Cornell dairyman, as a part of the demonstration of feet trimming, a matter of importance in the care of the mature bull.

A feature is a goat milking contest in which prominent herdsmen from all parts of the county are to participate. Registered for the event are Homer Jones of Haskinsville, Harold Stanton of Cohocton, Fay Wessels of Avoca, Guy Robbins of

S. J. BROWNELL
Will Demonstrate Bull Throwing at the Farm Bureau Dairy Tour August 11

Towlesville and Leonard Dennis of Greenwood.

Hold Funeral Service

Another event is the memorial service for the former sire of the Frank Crandall herd of Cameron, the records of whose daughters indicate that he transmitted high production. His premature death by slaughter, before his breeding ability was known, is to be lamented by Leland Lamb, secretary of the American Dairy Cattle Club.

A popular item of the program is the talk by Professor G. H. Serviss on "What to Do With Seeding Failures", a matter of interest to every Steuben farmer because of the season's drouth.

Tour Starts at Ten

The program begins at the Vincent Kurtz farm near Cohocton at ten o'clock standard time, goes to Hidden Inn Grove, Wayland, for a basket picnic, at 1:30 visits the goat herd of Don Allen, and at 2:30 goes to the Ed Wetmiller place at Patchinville.

Both farms produce large quantities of home grown feed, both have low milk production costs. On the Kurtz farm there are corn and soybeans for silage, nitrate was applied in the spring to timothy meadow and there is a sweet clover pasture. Mr. Wetmiller grows soybeans for grain, has grass as well as corn silage, and excellent pastures.

Leader of the tour is Leonard Dennis of Greenwood, chairman of the Northwestern Dairy Herd Improvement Association which is host of the event. The Steuben County Farm Bureau is the sponsor.

Avon — Jasper Garner has been engaged by the Board of Education as athletic coach on a 12-month basis, with a summer recreation program on school playgrounds.

Wildlife Will Roam Thru Forest Recreated For State Fair

Syracuse, August 8 — Sportsmen, conservationists, nature lovers and all lovers of the outdoors will have their own exhibit this year at the New York State Fair in the form of a model forest which is the feature of the State Conservation Department's exhibit at the exposition in Syracuse from August 26 to September 9.

The miniature forest will be complete with a real waterfall, trout stream, beaver dam and duck pond while live deer and other animals and birds roam their recreated habitat and swim in its waters. One entire wing in the State Institutions Building has been taken over by this novel exhibit at the Fair.

An actual waterfall, set in a forest background, drops into a trout stream which is well stocked and runs more than 160 feet gurgling through the building in exact duplicate of an Adirondack stream. The wildlife exhibit will be supplemented by a conservation lesson prepared by the State College of Forestry at Syracuse in another section of the building, which will demonstrate through models and mammoth murals how wildlife may be conserved in more than 12 different habitats.

Motion pictures of wildlife in New York State and methods employed by the State Department of Conservation will also be shown.

Returns After 50 Years to Find City 'Too Big'

About the time the people took week-end trips to Lake Union, and the mosquito fleet infested Pudget Sound, A. H. Tuttle was teaching school across Lake Washington, back in Houghton. That was in 1889.

He left here then to move to San Francisco, and during a visit East was wiped out by the earthquake there. So he left the West, and went to New York State.

Yesterday, fifty years afterwards, Tuttle was back in Seattle, to visit the city's Potlatch and be present for the state's Golden Jubilee celebration.

"The town's a little too big for me now", he said. I'm disappointed somewhat, for I rather hoped to find things like I left them. And I've found but two of my old friends".

Tuttle, who at one time lived near the pavilion at Madison Park, mourned the passing of the landmark, which years ago was a gathering place for all Seattle, and from where excursion boats left. He's just "over eighty" years old and at present is on an 8,000 mile trip around the nation from his home near Buffalo, N. Y., where he is in business and is a non-resident farmer.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Tuesday, August 1, 1939.
